1ST DAY EXTRA SPECIAL AT PARKVIEW ELEMENTARY

The first day of school was very special with all Parkview Elementary students experiencing a solar eclipse for the very first time. During the morning hours, students learned from their teachers about the different kinds of eclipse, how they are formed, and how often they can be seen by using a specially designed power point and the use of the NASA Live Link website.

With safety always being our number one concern, all students received special instructions on how to wear eclipse eye wear that was provided by our Charlotte Public Library. Throughout the afternoon, students continued to receive updates through the NASA website and one class even received a phone call from a relative in North Carolina to report what they were seeing in their state.

We are very pleased that we were able to share in the excitement of Parkview Elementary students as they experienced first-hand an event in history that they will never forget.
